

Alison Krauss Dulak began her career in dance as a student and then as a teacher at the Deane School of Dance. She studied at Boston Ballet School and was a student and counselor at the Svetlova Dance Center in Dorset, Vermont. She was a soloist for the Granite State Ballet Company and a teacher for the company's professional school. Alison is a certified instructor of Progressing Ballet Technique, a member of Wingman for Dance, and a certified teacher of Rhythm Works Integrative Dance for children with physical and developmental differences. Alison is also a certified instructor of Drums Alive® Ability Beats. She teaches ages three through adult, including intermediate and advanced ballet, pointe, and ballet variations. Alison has taught ballet for over 25 years at private dance schools throughout New England.